To Whom It May Concern,

It would seem as though all Bill Gates is interested in is making money, and choking out all the little guys that present any kind of a threat to his software empire. I think that a appropriate fine for Bill would not only be donation of hardware installed with any kind of a Linux flavor, but also to have Bill himself donate his time to go around to some of these underprivileged school and teach the students how to use the software. There couldn't be a worse punishment than to have him teach the basics to an os that is his adversary. I wish that people in this world wouldn't be so greedy and try to collect the wealth of the whole world in a lifetime, I mean he can't take it with him anyway so why can't he just be satisfied and lay off the small guys? Whatever you're decision is in this suit I hope that you really stick it to Bill where it will hurt him somewhere, after all he has been doing it to others for so long he really has it coming.

in the blessed name of Jesus,
jason
